Blending into the very fabric of this beautiful hamlet, Il Riposo is aptly named, 'the Retreat', taking on the wonderful personality of this quiet, historic artists' colony that dates from the 15th Century.

This historic property dates back to the 12th century and has been carefully and lovingly restored by the Appassionata team of builders and artisans. The four double bedrooms and three bathrooms provide plenty of space to enjoy many years of entertaining family and friends and create wonderful memories. Appassionata was born from the hearts and minds of successful entrepreneur Michael Hobbs, his wife, established interior designer, Dawn Cavanagh-Hobbs and their family. They created this business as a way of sharing their love of Italy with a discerning and select group of people. Travelling to the beautiful Le Marche region of Italy in 2004, Dawn and Michael discovered a combination of un-spoilt countryside, sea, mountains and an incredible quality of life - they instantly knew that they had found a part of the world that they wanted to call home.

On average, a holiday homeowner will only use their property for 40 separate nights but will pay for the entire year. Appassionata created their model to offer a true solution to holiday home purchasers who want to own the weeks they are actually going to use, without the stress of having to look after and maintain the property, giving their owners the time to connect deeply with the environment and culture of real Italy.

This lovely borgo has a wonderful history dating back to the 13th century when an 'enormous' miracle was alleged to have taken place in the village.

Built on a rock surrounded by two gorges in the 12th century the borgo is famous for its church tower and small picturesque narrow lanes. At 250m above sea level the views are spectacular.

During the 15th and 17th centuries Patrignone was an important cultural centre. The painters Martino and Giacomo Bonfini, Francesco and Giacomo Agnello as well as the sculptor Desiderio Bonfini were famous artists based in the village. In 1486 Antonio Bonfini was appointed as historian to the Hungarian court of King Mattia Corvino.

The history and culture of the borgo can be felt as you walk through the cobbled streets and view the lovely array of brick homes, churches, Palazzo and small castle in the lower piazza, adjacent to Il Riposo. With only 150 year round residents and 400 in total, this is definitely a retreat to savour.

The small bar/café/restaurant 'Antico Taverna Il Mattino dei Maghi' is a short walk away and a lovely venue, with fresh homemade dishes. A supermarket is also an easy walk through the village and has a full range of lovely fresh produce to create amazing home made dishes.

Il Riposo is situated in a prominent position at the beginning of Via Bonfini Desiderio with open views across the rolling hills towards the Adriatic sea. Only 20 minutes from the coast at Grottammare and 30 minutes to the Sibillini mountains, you will be ideally positioned in this beautiful part of Le Marche.

Patrignone is a frazione of Montalto delle Marche, a beautiful medieval town 3 minutes drive up the hill. Montalto is famous for being the home of Pope Sisto V, elected Pope in 1585 he made Montalto a Papal State during his reign.

The village has a cathedral in the historic centre dating back to 1587 built by the first Bishop of Montalto.

In 1880 Bishop Aronne had the famous artist 'Luigi Fontana' paint the interior of the Cathedral with beautiful fresco's, taking over 5 years this has made the Cathedral one of the most admired in Le Marche.

Montalto has a number of bars, shops, a pharmacy, restaurants and a bank; all within easy reach.

Condition:

Il Riposo dates from the 12th Century and has been fully restored and renovated. The engineering is to the highest standards available, incorporating all anti-seismic features. The project has been overseen by Ing. Vitale Grisostomi, famous for his historic building restorations. The house has been beautifully furnished, all designed and created by Interior Designer Dawn Cavanagh-Hobbs.
